Daniel Müller-Schott is one of the most sought-after cellists in the world and can be heard on all the great international concert stages. For many years he has been enchanting audiences as an ambassador for classical music in the 21st century and as a bridge builder between music, literature, and the visual arts. Daniel Müller-Schott is particularly interested in lecture concerts and performances in unusual places. The New York Times refers to his "intensive expressiveness" and describes him as a "fearless player with technique to burn".

George Alexander Albrecht, Sir André Previn and Peter Ruzicka have dedicated cello concertos to him.

Daniel Müller-Schott's artistic credo is to create a higher intensity of perception between music, visual arts and literature.
